PROFILE

An inspired and motivated junior full stack developer, looking to find his feet in the web development world and keep learning new programming concepts and technologies. Before joining the Le Wagon batch starting in July 2018, he spent a few months learning to design and code with front-end technologies. He has a background in Japanese translation, English teaching and business administration, including having spent four and a half years working in Japan, where he learnt to speak and read Japanese fluently. He favours both the creative and the problem-solving aspects of front end and back end, and is currently enjoying getting to grips with metaprogramming in Ruby.
